

Presented by Peter Cowman BArch, director of the Living Architecture Centre

Saturday November 28th 2009

Castlemaine Community House, Lyttleton Street, Castlemaine
2 - 4.30pm $10 fee includes Living Architecture DVD

Further details: LIVINGARCHITECTURECENTRE.COM

This energising mix of theory, fact and real life drama is an invitation from Irish architect Peter Cowman to enter the secret world of architecture and to discover its many hidden dimensions.

Whether journeying from Architecture to Economics or from Dream House to Built Reality, this excursion within the invisible realms of the built environment will fascinate those interested in a deeper understanding of the role of architecture in our lives and in the creation of a sustainable future.

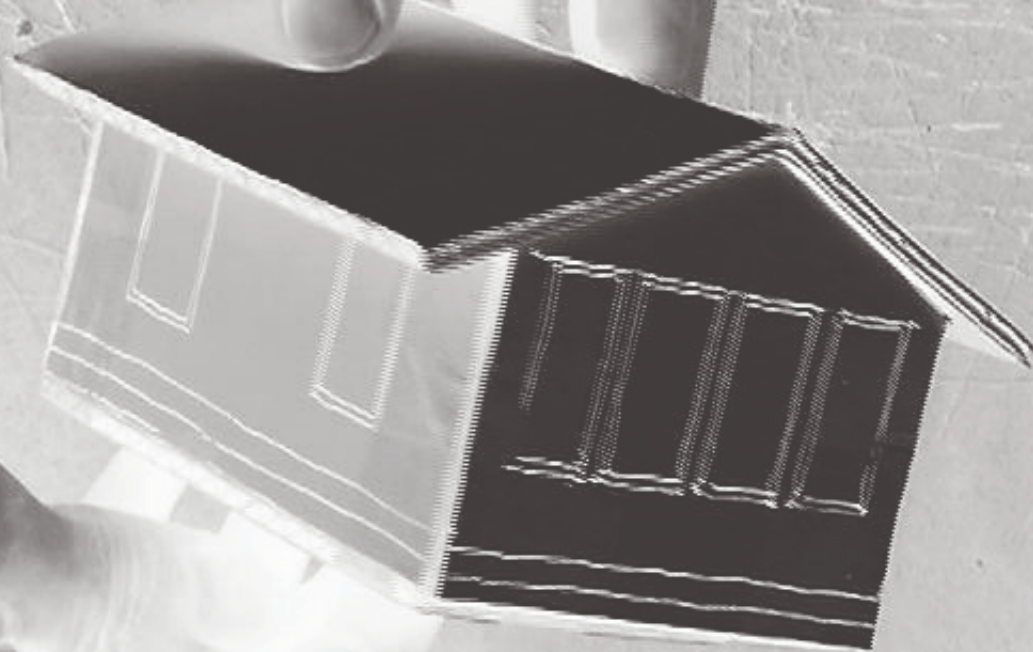

Some topics to be covered:

- Why are Buildings and People so alike?
- SpaceTime & Architecture
- Activating your Sheltermaker Gene
- The Exploration of Inner & Outer Space
- The Gender of Territory
- Living Your Architecture

Peter Cowman is an Irish architect, teacher, builder, writer and the director of the Living Architecture Centre, the internet school of architecture. He began teaching people how to design their own homes in 1989. He has a special interest in on mortgage-free self-building. He teaches and lectures internationally. Further information of all aspects of Living Architecture are available from livingarchitecturecentre.com

ARCHITECTURE PLAYHOUSE

... making space for your life

Sunday December 6th 2009

Yapeen, Castlemaine 10am - 4.30pm

Presented by Peter Cowman BArch, director of the Living Architecture Centre

$85 Materials and vegetarian lunch included

Booking: livingarchitecturecentre.com

Phone: 03 9005 5833 eMail: sheltermaker@gmail.com

Imagining your Dream House and coaxing it into Reality is the theme of this fascinating 1-day hands-on workshop.

Using simple materials and tools plus a generous dash of creative thinking this free-fall into the world of architecture will forever change how you think of houses, jobs, mortgages, sustainability and even life itself!

This hybrid of instruction and play will encourage a deeper understanding of the role buildings play in our lives and foster the rediscovery of the timeless architecture we create in childhood.

Make and take home your dream space!

Peter Cowman is an Irish architect, teacher, builder, writer and the director of the Living Architecture Centre, the internet school of architecture. He began teaching people how to design their own homes in 1989. He has a special interest in on mortgage-free self-building. He teaches and lectures internationally. Further information of all aspects of Living Architecture are available from livingarchitecturecentre.com